CHEMISTRY AND PHARMACOLOGICAL RESEARCH

Hoodia contains an active ingredient, steroidal glycoside, that has been called "p57". This p57 molecule increases hypothalamic ATP (adenosine triphosphate). Increased ATP triggers a message of satiety to your brain, eliminating the need to consume food in order to boost glucose levels, therefore preventing the desire to eat. Hoodia Gordonii is one of the most potent natural appetite regulators and doesn't have the common side effects that most weight loss products have, such as indigestion, heart palpitations, bad moods, dizziness, headaches, stomach cramps and nausea. Clinical trials in the United Kingdom showed that Hoodia reduced food intake by about 1000 calories per day, compared to a placebo group, despite having unlimited access to food. In this clinical trial, the Hoodia subjects lost weight without feeling hungry. Subsequently, as the subjects ate less, so their stomachs shrunk and further weight loss was achievable. Effective weight management is directly linked to calorie intake, and Hoodia Gordonii can assist in achieve an optimum physique, eating plan and weight, all the while boosting energy.
